The Story of Arinna

Hittites, III. During the reign of Hattušili and Puduhepa, the goddess Hepat became the head of the Hittite armies and state policy and was identified with the Sun Goddess of Arinna. We understand this situation from a prayer of Puduhepa.

The 'Sun Goddess' Arinna, the protector of the city.. The protector of the Hittite State and its armies. She is the mother goddess in the religion of the Hittites, she carries a sun crown on her head and her symbol is the sun like her name. The sun is a symbol of healing and fertility.

People always have exaggerated thoughts about things they don't know. With the beginning of human life, these thoughts have entered our lives in various ways. This thought has created what we believe most in. The geography we live in has given us such beautiful lives that it is entirely up to us to discover and recognize them...

We are here to explore the story of Arinna and the stories of many other gods and goddesses together. Each work we do belongs to the geography we live in and represents the culture, belief and life of this geography.

Our symbol 'Cybele', the God of the Gods (MAGNA MATER) symbol is our goddess, the Moon. Our name 'Arinna' is our Sun, our Sun Goddess... One is the representation of the night and the other is the day. . together with their stories, we present them to your liking...

MAGNA MATER

The first findings related to clothing in history were found among the Hittites and later in Troy. The clothing culture of the Hittites influenced the ancient Egyptian civilization so much that the ancient Greeks and later the Romans were also affected by it. Based on this cultural interaction, the foundations of today's Western clothing culture were laid in Anatolia.
